BURGLARS HOLD UP VILLAGE

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

COTTON producers have sustained the Bankhead compulsory production control law for another year by an overwhelming vote. Although there was some opposition to the law at Memphis and other cotton-handling centers there never would vote. A Memphis Commercial Appeal straw vote showed the Bankhead Law defeated by 5 to 3—but the polls conducted by local newspapers circulating mainly among actual dirt farmers showed otherwise. The Star's straw vote wound up with an 8-to-1 majority for the law, and today's complete county tabulation puts the majority at 30-to-1.

But Other Chinese Return It Safely to Mission Station

SHANGHAI, China.—(P)—The cold-blooded, public execution of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Siam, American missionaries, by Chinese bandits was described in reports received here Saturday by the China Inland Mission station.

The report said the bandits forced the Siams to walk several miles and then killed them.

Siam's plea to permit his wife and baby to go free was ignored.

The baby was abandoned by the bandits. Other Chinese found the baby and returned it to the mission station.

Girl Scout Leader in Two Addresses

Miss Alice Phillipson of New York City Is Hope Visitor

Miss Alice Phillipson, of New York City, national executive secretary for the Girl Scouts of America, was in Hope Friday to assist in the organization of local Girl Scout troops and Brownie packs.

At 10:30 a. m. she made a talk in the home economics cottage at the high school to the girls already belonging to the local Troop No. 1 and representatives from the elementary schools in the city who were interested in forming Brownie packs.

She first told the girls what various other troops of Girl Scouts were doing and was interested to learn that the girls of the local troop were engaged in the same activities, such as helping the Goodfellows collect and repair toys and singing Christmas carols.

She then told of interesting incidents concerning other Girl Scouts in this country as well as in 37 other countries. She spoke very informally of Girl Scout camps located in Arkansas which might be attended by the girls from the Hope troops.

At noon Miss Phillipson was the guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Barlow Hotel by Miss Beryl Henry, city superintendent of schools, and others interested in Girl Scout

Bankhead Wins; Sweeps State 23 to 1

Vast Majority Is Reported by All of Cotton States

Arkansas Tabulation Is 71,443 for, to 3,862 Votes Against

YEAR ENDORSEMENT

Compulsory Production Control Another 12 Months Wins Easily

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Arkansas agriculturists said Friday in overwhelming numbers that they desire continued restrictions on cotton production.

For every one opponent of the Bankhead cotton production control act there were 23 who said they wanted the act to remain in force another year, tabulations Saturday disclosed.

The trend was unmistakable as 49 of the state's 72 cotton producing counties were represented in the totals, which stood Saturday as follows:

For 71,443; against 3,862. The vote was complete in 15 counties.

Mississippi county, the world's largest cotton producing county, gave the Bankhead act a huge majority; while Crittenden county cast only two votes against it.

T. Roy Reid, assistant agricultural extension director for Arkansas, said the vote signified the confidence of the farmers in "both the act itself and the administration of it."

Opponents withheld comment.

By the Associated Press

Cotton growers Friday assured continuance of compulsory control of production in 1935 by voting for retention of the Bankhead act by a margin that approximated nine to one on the basis of partial returns.

With returns for meager primary election-producing state, the first tabulation showed 415,018 for continuance of the Bankhead legislation and only 37,152 opposed.

The measure which passed last spring stipulated that two-thirds of the cotton producers must vote for its application another year or it would be discarded.

Oklahoma was the only state that failed to register the required two-thirds.

Although they did not predict a change in the voting trend, opponents of the act, which seeks to control production by taxation, said that 2,600,000 farmers were eligible to vote in the election.

Bankhead Pleased

Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, author of the measure, said he was "immensely gratified" and would advance the same allotment "as in 1934—10,000,000 bales."

A hard campaign against the act was waged in Georgia, where Gov. Eugene Talphadue opposed it. Returns from 53 out of 159 counties there showed 62,647 for control and 9,978 against.

Secretary Wallace told the Associated Press that if the act had been retained—as the voting indicated—every effort would be made to increase the "efficiency of administration" next year.

Other States

Other returns included: Virginia: For, 1,273; against, 244. Mississippi—51 out of 82 counties (mostly complete): For retention, 97,705; against, 2,673.

Tennessee: 43,069 for retention; 3,192 against.

Louisiana: 43 of 44 cotton-growing parishes (mostly complete): For retention, 74,265; against, 1,778.

Oklahoma: 3,987 for the act and 3,032 against.

Calvin Baker, Ex-Slave, Dies at Patmos Home at Age of 102

Bought in Virginia Slave Market by Late Father of C. C. Spragins for $2,000

Calvin Baker, 102-year-old negro slave, died Friday at his home near Patmos.

Baker was born in Virginia. He was sold on the slave market to the late S. T. Spragins, father of C. C. Spragins, cashier of Citizens National Bank.

The elder Mr. Spragins brought Baker to Arkansas about 1859, along with several other negro slaves. His purchase price, as well as could be learned, was $2,000.

Mr. Spragins settled near Wallaceburg. The negro remained with him as a faithful servant all through the Civil war, which resulted in freedom for the slaves.

Liberated by the emancipation law, Baker remained in Hempstead county. Although his age had been placed as high as 112, Cashier Spragins recalled that the negro was born the same year as his father, 1828.

The negro was a friend of many of the older settlers of Hempstead county. Dr. J. H. Weaver, Hempstead coroner, had known the former slave for years.

Once, Dr. Weaver attempted to trace the negro's exact age, but was unable to ascertain the correct figure.

The negro recalled that he remembered "when the stars fell," an expression known better among elderly persons. That date was about 1832.

The negro at that time was "a good-sized plow boy."

Funeral services for the one-time slave will be held Sunday afternoon, near aPmos.

FERA Workers to Meet on Monday

District Institute for 16 Counties to Be Held in Hope

Emergency relief administrators and case work supervisors of 16 southern counties will hold a two-day institute in Hope Monday and Tuesday.

The group meeting starts at 9 a. m. in the city hall. Joe R. Floyd, disbursing officer of the Hope office, announced.

Counsellors assigned to meet here are: Polk, Montgomery, Garland, Sevier, Howard, Pike, Clark, Hot Spring, Little River, Hempstead, Nevada, Ouachita, Miller, Lafayette, Columbia and Union.

Attendance at these institutes is to be limited to county administrators and county case work supervisors. Attendance is being limited at the institute in order that the group may be kept to a small number so that there will be more opportunity for informal discussions of the topics presented.

Miss Mary Lee Gunter of Tulane University, who has been conducting similar institutes in other southern states, will be present at the meetings and will lead the discussions on problems of administration and the case work discussion. Representatives from state office will also attend to discuss the work of their departments. There will be small group meetings to discuss different problems of special interest.

Club Plans Annual Holiday Event for Next Friday Night

Plans for the Christmas activities of the club were discussed at the Kiwanis meeting Friday night at Hotel Barlow. As has been the custom in the past, the club will distribute food baskets and toys to the needy families in Hempstead county on Christmas morning.

Charles Gibson, president of the club, appointed Dale Jones, Joe Floyd and A. J. Cross as a committee to perfect the plans and make the necessary arrangements for the distribution of these baskets.

Next Friday night's meeting will be the occasion for the annual Christmas party of the club. Toy gifts will be exchanged and following the merry-making, the toys will be turned over to the committee for distribution to needy children at Christmas.

State Undertakes $500,000 for Relief

Arkansas Is Going to Raise It as Federal Aid Nears End

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Arkansas's insular, tubercular patients and unemployed must have first consideration of the 1935 legislature, and these people must have first call upon the money which can be raised by the legislature.

Governor Fretwell said Friday, "The governor made this statement vigorously. He paced the floor of his office and expressed his determination to see that the helpless charges of the state receive the care to which they are entitled."

"We cannot turn our backs and tubercular loose on the people," he said. "The legislature must raise $500,000 to care for these two classes."

Governor Fretwell said he did not know how much money would be needed for unemployed, but that investigations are being made and estimates will be submitted to the legislature as soon as it convenes.

The governor's definition of an unemployed was "one who would not be able to get or to do work if work and jobs were plentiful."

"The federal government is right,"

Finland Is Only Nation to Pay Up

United States Gets One Cent Per $20 on War Debts Saturday

HELSINGFORS, Finland.—(P)—Finland "promised to pay" the war debt she owes the United States, and she's paying—because "it's the only honest thing to do."

Thus Risto Rytty, governor of the Bank of Finland, explained Friday his government's action in sending to the United States the $20,000 due this mid-month on her war debt.

Finland will make formal payment of the amount Saturday, the day the installment comes due, although, Rytty said, she will wait until she may be the only nation to do so.

"It is only natural that we should," he said. "We signed a contract. We promised to pay. It's the only honest thing to do."

"Of course our debt is small and strictly speaking, it isn't a war debt. But we are able to pay, and glad to pay. We see no reason why we should make an exception between our war debt to America and our other debts."

President Hopeful

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Although the United States will receive less than one cent on each $20 due Saturday from 12 European nations, President Roosevelt expressed belief Friday that eventual settlement of the war debts would be had.

He declined to say at his press conference on what he based his hope.

Eight nations had informed the State Department that they would default Saturday. Three others were prepared to give similar notice. The 11 owed $629,895,716.

Finland alone of the 12 debtor nations informed the State Department that its installment of $28,538 would be paid in cash to the New York Federal Reserve bank.

The Hungarian government explained it would be unable to pay because of "extremely unfavorable economic conditions" but would deposit a certificate equivalent to $4,771.93 in the Hungarian National bank which will bear interest at 2 per cent until paid. There is no provision for future redemption of the certificates.

The United States dunned Hungary for $50,210.65 due Saturday, and the difference in figures results from Hungary's refusal to acknowledge indebtedness for accrued interest amounting to $38,722 on past due installments.

Basketball Team Defeats DeQueen

Kennedy High Man in 34-18 Victory, Opening Season's Play

Hope High School basketball team opened the season Friday night with a 34-to-18 victory over DeQueen. The game was played at DeQueen.

Kennedy was high man for the Bobcats, with 16 points. Cooper led the scoring for DeQueen with six. The Hope team had practiced only two days.

The Bobcats will play here next week if a game can be arranged, but the season will not get into full swing until after the Christmas holidays.

Coch Foy Hammons, who has a reputation of turning out strong cage teams as well as producing championship football teams, announced that the basketball season would begin in earnest when Hope plays Camden here January 15.

The full schedule has not been filled, but will be announced as quickly as completed. Some of the leading teams of the state will be looked for appearances here.

The seating capacity of the gymnasium will be enlarged to take care of at least 300 spectators.

The Bobcats last season fought their way into the state high school tournament at Harrison, and went as far as the quarter finals before the team was eliminated.

With several veterans returning to the squad, another strong team looms for the Hope school. The starting lineup at DeQueen Friday night:

Forwards: Reese and R. Turner. Guards—England and Ramsey. Center—Kennedy.

NRA Supervision of Labor to Continue

Collective Bargaining, Child Labor Abolition, to Be Permanent

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Intention of the government to retain in NRA the principles of collective bargaining, maintenance of minimum wages and the ban against child labor was emphasized by President Roosevelt Friday.

He told newspapermen that these principles were regarded as fundamental and that interest of the government in them would be continued. The word came from the president shortly after William Grene, speaking for the American Federation of Labor, had given him his recommendations for the future of NRA, suggesting among other things that the government continue its supervision over

Man Seeks Protection From Animal Diseases

Many of the diseases that are transmitted from animal to man could be completely stamped out through the proper co-operation of veterinary and medical authorities and with suitable aid from the public health services.

Such diseases as tuberculosis, which affects cattle, glanders, hydrophobia, anthrax, cowpox and undulant fever from animals to human beings. If these scourges were once eradicated from a community, it should be possible, by efficient examination and quarantine, to keep them out.

Two of these diseases—glanders in the horse and hydrophobia in the dog—have been eliminated from Great Britain. There has been no case of glanders in Great Britain for six years.

In stamping out this disease a law was put into effect whereby all horses and ponies, whether they are luxury horses, such as hunters and racers, or working horses, have to be submitted to the test for glanders before they are allowed to enter the country.

Thirty or 40 years ago rabies, or hydrophobia, was a most dreaded disease in Great Britain. Now this condition has been stamped out and its chance of occurrence is carefully guarded against by enforcing a six months' quarantine regulation on all imported cats and dogs.

New Zealand has been able to stamp out two of these conditions by similar measures.

The control of tuberculosis among cattle, however, has not been such a simple problem. To stamp out tuberculosis, it is not only necessary to have complete use of the tuberculin test, but also to be able to destroy immediately cattle which are found to be infected.

Moreover, such a disease is so widespread that the number of inspectors and qualified veterinarians is never sufficient to establish the necessary control.

It has been estimated that the condition in cattle similar to undulant fever in man, and inflammatory diseases of the udders bring a loss to New Zealand of around $10,000,000 a year, and yet means have not been developed for eradicating these diseases from cattle.

Inasmuch as these conditions may be transmitted from animal to man, it is obvious that a great deal of research is necessary to control them before the danger of spread to human beings can be eliminated.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

'Let Joy Be Unconfined To Your Home' Suggested As Revised Christmas Motto

I cannot help thinking that the phrase, "Let joy be unconfined," ought to be modified this year to take existing conditions into consideration.

The little sentence is timely if worded differently. Why not make it: "Let joy be unconfined to our own homes."

We can say, "Oh, the government is doing everything and we're taxed to death. We've given to the Community Fund and besides we have bills we can't pay. How we are going to skip a little bit of Christmas for ourselves we simply don't know."

Yes, it is true, all of it. Don't tell me that Christmas isn't going to be a scratch-and-scratch-it for thousands of people at the best.

Like Mrs. Wiggs' Soup
But if you are not weary of hearing of it—I quote it so much—there was Mrs. Wiggs and her potato soup with a bit more water for each neighbor who dropped in to say howdy at mealtime.

And, of course, there was the miracle of the loaves and fishes. Long have I been convinced that when one gives his little with the right spirit, more seems to be his to give. Perhaps this is a selfish interpretation, but not if the eyes look out instead of in.

Be that as it may, I like the old fashioned way of remembering the forgotten child. The little gift, bright and gay but simple as you please that will make some little fellow shout and hightail it out of the house, to show his mother. A little girl's giggle and awkward thanks as she hangs the string of beads around her neck, or hugs them to her heart.

Toy missions, clubs, societies everywhere, firemen and civic workers are up to their elbows in this matter of toy distribution. I must say that it takes America to put through things like this the way we do it.

Resources Taxed
However they cannot do it all, even though they know of every child needing a windfall from Santa's sack.

Besides this year, the fifth bad year we've had they are going to be put to it to find enough to go round. There aren't just too many used toys lying around as used to be the case, waiting for wigs, point and wheels to make them like new.

And we should not allow opinion to prevent our playing Santa Claus. Please don't say, "His daddy could work if he wanted to," or "Her mother is the meanest person in the neighborhood," or "He worked for the Republicans or Democrats or Socialists."

What all of us should see is the little soul who just thinks its the other fellows Christmas.

Maybe he's bad—maybe she is dirty. Well, a little fun, the feel of being in things certainly won't make them any worse. On the contrary happiness with children is the greatest "social" elevator known.

The children in our own families might readily enter into the spirit of the thing. In fact I know of nothing better for them.

One mistake we usually make is "all get and no give" where the children are concerned. They will enjoy it for better if they can play a bit of Santa Claus themselves.

mature women than to young girls. "A person under 25 may be sweetly pretty, but seldom is she beautiful. Real beauty comes with maturity and reflects the fully developed personality. As the old saying goes, it is a great deal more than skin deep."

His words should be of particular interest to women who bemoan their birthdays. And to those who fret every time they notice another expression line.

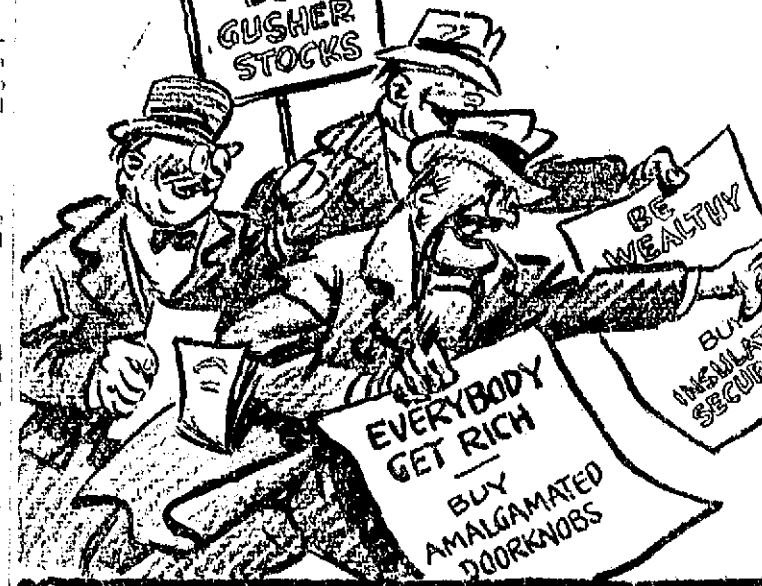

Deep Feeling Shows Through
Expression lines are bound to appear, you know. The more you really live and sincerely feel pain, joy, sorrow and the other pure emotions, the more line you'll have. There's no reason to be ashamed of them.

An unfixed face, putty-like in its placidity, may mean that its owner is too shallow ever to feel anything deeply. And unless you really feel, the chances are that you never will be a kindly, sympathetic person.

This, of course, doesn't mean that you should be so happy about lines that you neglect the use of preparations made especially to keep the skin youthful. Lines are one thing—frown lines are quite a different matter.

The smart thing to do is to stop fretting about your years and remember that what you are inside is more important. Real beauty shines from within and, like success, generally comes after a person has reached maturity.

GOOD TIMES

And then he saw the stranger pull Ann up in his arms and swiftly, impulsively, lay his cheek against her hair. Peter took a step forward, then stopped, astonished at his emotion.

He had the feeling that he would like to tear Ann from the fellow's arms. No, he wanted to knock the man down. He stood, watching them. Hating Tony—he had guessed the man was Tony—he had guessed the man was Tony—

Because he knew Tony was capable of carrying out his threat, she led the way to the conservatory. "I'm going mad, thinking of you loving him," Tony said hoarsely. "Ann, you can't go through with this. You can't. I won't let you, darling."

Ann said in a low, troubled voice, "Peter and I are just friends. He doesn't care anything about me, Tony. But he's been wonderfully kind to me."

Tony, searching her eyes said, "You're not lying? He doesn't love you?"

"He doesn't love me at all." It was hard to believe that word could be any one in the world so kind as not to love Ann. But that was her story. Tony remembered people said that Peter Kendall had been engaged to that baby-faced Valerie Bennett.

He did not ask Ann if she loved Peter. He knew whom Ann loved. He had seen her heart in her eyes when he had talked about marrying her.

He had known that all he needed to do was to whistle and there would be his devoted girl, ready to march off with him to the parson's. Tony was pulling Ann toward him, his dark head bent toward her. Ann, resisting, whispered, "Please, let's play the game fairly."

He drew back then, not because of her words, but because he had heard some one enter the conservatory. Peter's face was white and stern. He said, "Isn't this mine Ann?"

"Peter," said Ann in a tremulous voice. "I want you to meet Tony Mickle."

The two men bowed stiffly. Ann said, "Goodbye, Tony." He answered, "Good night, Ann." And because she guessed his pain, she said gently, "Dance with me again."

"Some other time. I'm running along now." Flame in Tony's eyes. Steel in Peter's.

Ann breathed easier. Somehow something terrible which had been about to happen, hadn't.

There is at his finest toward the finish of the year; almost what he should be when the Christmas season is here; he's thinking more of others than he's thought the months before.

The laughter of his children is a joy worth waiting for; he is less a selfish creature than at any other time.

When the Christmas spirit rules him, he comes close to the sublime; he is ever in a struggle and he's oft misunderstood;

There are days the worst that in him is the master of the good; but at Christmas kindness rules him and he puts himself aside.

And his petty hates are vanquished and his heart is opened wide.

Oh, we don't know how to say it, but somehow it seems to me that at Christmas man is almost what God sent him here to be.—E. A. G.

The Women's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church will meet Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church. This being their Christmas meeting all members are asked to bring their little red stockings filled for the Ministerial Relief.

The hospitable Edridge home was aglow with yuletide reminders, in red and green, with garlands of holly and great branches of crimson holly and a profusion of crimson roses and red carnations. In the rear of the room stood the Christmas tree, resplendent in all of its finery of tinsel, bright ornaments and shining lights with branch laden presents for every one present. The festivities opened with a surprise serenade from the newly organized Harmonica band which was greatly enjoyed. Followed by Mrs. McNeill the club president calling the meeting to order to complete the arrangements for the organ recital at the First Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening December 18, by Mrs. Cozina Hynson Case, an Arkansasian. ## Prescott Forms a Y. B. M. A., Too

Business Men Organize Group Along Lines Started in Hope

PRESCOTT, Ark.—A group of Prescott's young business men met Thursday night at the offices of Drs. Buchanan, Hirst and Dickey and set up a temporary organization for the Prescott Young Business Men's Association.

Dr. A. B. Dickey was named temporary chairman. The permanent organization is to be set up at a meeting to be held Monday night.

The main purpose of the meeting was to get a group of the young business men together for a discussion of the possibilities of forming a young business men's association in Prescott.

Many of the men came to the meeting with no definite idea of the object and purpose of such an organization but when this was made clear all those present were highly in favor of organizing at once.

A considerable amount of time was given over to discussion of policy and purpose, at which time several needed and helpful projects were discussed.

Among them were possibilities of direct relief for the destitute in the city which will necessarily have to be taken into consideration at an early date as government aid will not be available after February 1.

Some discussion was given over to the expansion and concentration of Prescott's trading territory.

Among other proposals came a petition from the Prescott Athletic association, which through Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Robinson, requesting the new organization to lend its support to a city gymnasium project already under consideration and approved by governmental relief agencies. However, this project was taken under advisement by the Association and actual support was postponed until after further discussion at the next meeting.

work. Those attending the luncheon were: Mesdames O. A. Graves, C. D. Lester, Foy Hammons, D. L. Bush, Edwin Dossert, Jim Henry, Chas. Hall, J. R. Williams, R. L. Beach, Charles Rauton Jr., Misses Beryl Henry, Missa Mae Milburn, Louise Owen, Mamie Bell, Holl, Pansy Wimberly and Frances Patterson.

At 2:30 Miss Phillipson addressed a representative group at the city hall on the subject "What the Girl Scouts Mean to a Community." One of the main facts emphasized by Miss Phillipson was that the girls were taught how to use their leisure time wisely and profitably. She spoke of one girl summarizing the benefits of scouting as "teaching me first, how to live with myself, and second, teaching me how to live with others." She stated that the Girl Scout troops were growing rapidly in Arkansas, increasing in the last year from two organizations, in Little Rock and Fayetteville, to more than a dozen located over the entire state.

An open forum was held, with Miss Phillipson answering questions concerning the organization and work of the Girl Scout troops.

Immediately after the meeting adjourned, Miss Phillipson left for Hot Springs, where she will continue her work in that city.

expand, won't invest millions in the new railroad and gins and warehouses necessary to place her in a true world competitive position—because she is afraid if she does the United States will "pull the plug," abandoning production control and flooding the world with cheap American cotton.

Today we are helping the cotton farmer.

Tomorrow we shall have to forget him, and help cotton.

We live by cotton, and we die by it. Whatever is ultimately good for the farthest trade name of America cotton—that we shall ultimately come to.

And perhaps by another year the Roosevelt administration will have progressed far enough with reciprocal tariff treaties to speed that happy day.

A Tragedy of Narcotic Slavery

Stark tragedy that has come to a mother enslaved by narcotics and the pitiful plight of her son are pictured vividly in this Murfreesboro, Tenn., jail scene, as one of the scores of addicts caught in a nation-wide roundup bids "goodbye for a long, long time," to her child, Jimmie. 4. She declared that she would end her life at the first chance, after a friend had promised to take care of the boy.

Legion Commander Stuttgart's Guest

4 From Hope Attend Duck Dinner for Frank N. Belgrano, Jr.

STUTTGART, Ark.—With tables decorated with two products for which Stuttgart and Arkansas county are famous, miniature shocks of rough rice and fat ducks deliciously roasted, Daniel Harder post of the American Legion held his 10th annual banquet in honor of Stuttgart business men at the First Christian church Friday night.

National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr., of California, the fourth consecutive national Legion chief to attend the annual event, was the guest of honor and principal speaker.

In opening his address he paid a tribute to the late O. L. Bodenhamer, the first national commander to attract wide attention to the Stuttgart post by reserving a date early in his administration to attend the duck supper here. Many in the audience of more than 500 business men and Legionnaires from throughout the state commended on the similarity between Commander Belgrano's style of delivery and that of the late Colonel Bodenhamer.

Joe Morrison, city attorney and former department commander, presided as toastmaster. Dr. H. S. Neel, post commander, welcomed the visitors, and J. C. Robbins responded for the business men. Dr. E. M. Sparling of Hot Springs department vice commander, responded for visiting Legionnaires. The national commander was introduced by past Department Commander Charles Q. Kelly of Little Rock.

Attending the Stuttgart dinner from Hope were: W. M. Ramsey, Oliver Williams, Calvin Cassidy and Dewey Hendrix.

dealings between employer and employee.

Donald Richberg, chairman of the Emergency Council and one of the chief aides of Mr. Roosevelt in drafting the new National Recovery Act, said the labor supervision "seemed most necessary if there is going to be government sanction of codes." He had luncheon with the president.

Manufacturers have proposed return of administration of industry to private hands. Mr. Roosevelt probably will reserve final decision of his NRA recommendations until opportunity is given for the group of business leaders meeting next week at White Sulphur Springs to offer their suggestions.

W. A. Harriman Jr., executive director of NRA, said plans for the future of the agency still were in the "round table discussion stage." He repeated the statement of Clay Williams, chairman of the NRA Board, Thursday in New York that price-fixing phases might be abandoned.

Mr. Roosevelt was described as having determined upon retention of the principles in the existing NRA providing for collective bargaining by labor and abolition of child labor.

Poll Tax Lists to Be Probed Closely

Ashley County Lists Figure in Parks-Kitchens Contest Suit

HAMBURG, Ark.—Many lists of delinquent poll tax assessments, each containing from 2 to 50 names, were turned in to W. E. Livingston, Chicot county tax assessor or his deputy, and the delinquent assessments were given to the persons turning in the lists. Mr. Livingston testified in the Parks-Kitchens election contest suit here Friday. He took the lists to the county clerk and then to the sheriff who issued poll tax receipts.

"I did not see any of the names placed on the books nor did I see them pay the sheriff for poll taxes," Livingston testified. "I only carried them to the clerk's office and turned them over to him."

Both the assessor and his deputy, Miss Louis Livingston, said that none of the persons listed took the prescribed oath and none had been asked if he had any property. It was "understood" the witnesses said, that they wanted only poll tax receipts.

Asked if the persons who submitted the lists and paid for the delinquent assessments were interested in politics, the assessor replied: "They undoubtedly were."

Defense lawyers indicated that some of the persons turning in the lists would be called as witnesses next week and would be questioned concerning their activities. Among those mentioned today were: J. V. Gillison, J. W. Holley, W. H. Moore, M. Tullas, Sam Cain, D. T. Hayes and W. Parker. All the 280 challenged assessments were examined on direct examination and it was announced that the plaintiff would cross-examine them when court is reconvened at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Two of the election judges of Parkdale, Ashley county, testified during the afternoon. They were J. C. McMillian and P. L. Calloway. Both declared that a correct count was made and that it showed 147 votes for Parks and only 14 for Kitchens. More than 50 persons have testified for the plaintiff that they voted for Kitchens at the Parkdale box. It was testified that after the election the box was locked and taken to the home of Calloway and brought to Hamburg two days later. The witnesses said the box was "delivered in good shape."

STATE UNDERTAKES

Governor Futrell said, "I believe it is the duty of the state and the local communities to care for the unemployables. Our legislature and our local communities must shoulder this burden."

Governor Futrell said that he talked with W. R. Dyess, state relief director, concerning school districts which the government has declared ineligible to receive educational relief funds.

"There is nothing I can do," the governor said. "Mr. Dyess showed me his order from Washington, and there is nothing he can do. The government has declared these districts ineligible and it seems to be out of our hands."

"The audits disclose that with monies advanced by the Missouri Pacific Railroad company, certain of its subsidiary companies during the years of 1930 and 1931 purchased large amounts of the common and preferred stock of the Missouri Pacific Railroad company and International & Great Northern Railroad company."

Market value of the securities, the letter said, is now much less than their purchase price.

"The audits also disclose certain loans made to shippers along the line upon which there have also been substantial losses," the letter said.
